Episcopal Identity

Episcopal schools strive to integrate religious and spiritual formation into the overall curriculum and life of each school community. They invite all who attend and work with them—Episcopalians and non-Episcopalians, Christians and non-Christians, people of no faith tradition—to seek clarity about their own beliefs and religions and to honor those traditions more fully and faithfully in their own lives. Above all, Episcopal schools exist not merely to educate, but to demonstrate and proclaim the unique worth and beauty of all human beings as creations of a loving and empowering God.

Chapel is an integral part of the student experience for every student, nurturing character, grace, community fellowship, and spiritual wellness. Every elementary student participates in Chapel services weekly as a dedicated time in the school schedule for proclamation, celebration, solace and reflection of God's goodness and unconditional love, and every person as a unique and special being created by God. Students take active roles in all Chapel services in multi-age teams which build cross-grade relationships.

Academics

Episcopal schools are recognized nationwide for their strong academic programs, and Saint Paul's Episcopal School is proud to be part of this tradition. From our founding to today, we have surrounded students with caring, dedicated faculty who bring the best curricula and teaching practices into the classroom.

At Saint Paul's, we embrace the dynamic yet complementary relationship between faith and reason. For us, it is never an "either/or," but rather a both/and: a faith-filled community committed to the pursuit of academic excellence.

Our program nurtures the whole child—mind, body, and spirit—from our Early Learning program through Sixth Grade. This continuum of care and learning allows Saint Paul's educators to prepare students wholeheartedly for the challenges and opportunities of their next stages in life.

Living in Waco, Texas

With its low-traffic volume, abundance of city parks and amenities and strong housing marketing, Waco is a great place to call home. The population in the Waco area is close to a quarter-million people and growing. The past several years have brought new shopping and restaurant options to the city and more are planned for the coming year.

The promise of new development along the river has locals excited about the city's future. With the recent additions of Baylor University's Foster Pavilion, which hosts our National Championship Men's and Women's basketball teams, Magnolia Market and the Balcones Distillery bringing national exposure to the city of Waco, city leaders and influencers are working to develop a "Riverwalk" along the Brazos that will potentially bring retail, restaurant and entertainment venues together. Major industries that have established a presence in the area include SpaceX and Amazon.

The "Brazos Commons" has received approval for millions of dollars in public support for its riverfront development project along the Brazos. Developers are slated to begin construction of the mixed-use project in the next year, which will include retail and residential space and an 11-story hotel that includes 8,000 square feet of conference space and a rooftop bar.

All this activity is creating a more inviting, competitive environment which is attracting a wider array of development, including high-end shopping and dining, the arts, entertainment, hotels, offices, residences and green spaces.
